Administrative history / Biographical sketch

Note

A. Curtis Wilgus was born in Plattville, Wisconsin in 1898. Wilgus, an educator, bibliographer, historian, author, lecturer and delegate to several Pan American conferences, contributed to the development of Latin American studies in the United States. He developed an interest in Latin American history during his years as a graduate student, and received a doctorate in Latin American history from the University of Wisconsin. From 1924-30 Wilgus taught history at the University of South Carolina, established a night school and organized the South Carolina History Association.

From 1930-51, Wilgus held a teaching position at the George Washington University. He served as academic dean for two years and organized and directed the Center for Inter-American Studies. The Center, which opened in 1932, coordinated and promoted the teaching of Latin American affairs. Through the Center, Wilgus arranged annual seminar conferences. These symposium classes, taught by leading authorities, drew graduate students from around the country. Wilgus edited the seminar lectures, published by the University Press in the following volumes: Modern Hispanic America, The Caribbean Area, Argentina, Brazil and Chile Since Independence, and Colonial Hispanic America.

As director, Wilgus also arranged exhibits of Latin American textiles and art, promoted Latin American studies in high school history clubs, and supplied high schools with books, pamphlets and photographs. He cultivated relations with Latin American diplomats and with other Pan American organizations, and organized the Center's "Pan American Day" programs.

Upon leaving George Washington University, Wilgus accepted a post at the University of Florida at Gainesville where he organized and directed another Latin American Center, the School of Inter-American Studies. Wilgus began another series of annual conferences and also edited lectures for publication. During his years at the University of Florida, Wilgus focused on Caribbean studies, organizing several conferences on this topic.

Throughout his career, Wilgus concentrated on bibliographic work. He viewed this scholarship as the key to the progress of Latin American studies. He prepared a number of special bibliographies published by the Pan American Union, and with other scholars he established the U.S. Office of Education's Inter-American Bibliographical and Library Association (IABLA), which published the Hispanic American Historical Review (HAHR). Wilgus also established the "Door to Latin America," a bibliographical segment published in several magazines, and later published separately as a pamphlet.

In addition to these activities, Wilgus lectured on historical and educational topics at more than fifty-two universities and colleges around the country. He wrote hundreds of works on Latin America including book reviews, articles, books, bibliographies, syllabi, maps, charts and other teaching materials. He edited World Affairs and The Caravan, and served as editor, or consultant on Latin America, to several publishing and encyclopedia companies. He corresponded with Latin American scholars from several different countries in order to coordinate activities. Wilgus also served as director or founder of a number of Latin American organizations. He received decorations and honors from various Latin American governments and organizations, and held important posts, serving as a consultant to the United States Department of State and the United States Office of Education. Wilgus was appointed by President John F. Kennedy to serve on the Board of Foreign Scholarships, and served with Vice President Nelson Rockefeller as coordinator for the Office of Inter-American Affairs.

In 1967 Wilgus left the University of Florida and moved to Miami where he continued to write and to act as a consultant on Latin America. He also participated in public relations and fund raising activities for various organizations. Wilgus sold his private library containing thousands of volumes to several universities in the South Florida area, and began works on other aspects of Latin America. He died in January, 1981.

Scope and content

The A. Curtis Wilgus Papers document the pioneering efforts by historian and author A. Curtis Wilgus (1898-1981) in the area of Latin American studies and the emergence of "Pan Americanism." The correspondence, writings, research files, photographs and other materials also document the evolution of a trend in higher education during the 1920's and the 1970's, an increase in global awareness reflected in the introduction of "area studies" programs at many universities.

Arrangement

SERIES I: CORRESPONDENCE contains "personal," "family" and "professional" correspondence dated 1901-48. Personal correspondence, dated 1901-48, is arranged chronologically and contains letters to family members and friends, photographs, and programs from various sports, musical and other church and school events. Several of Wilgus' letters report on his experiences in the military during World War I. Other topics covered in correspondence include teaching positions, publications, book reviews, conferences and organizations. School newspapers, faculty memos, financial records, book selections for courses, programs from university events, bulletins, and other materials also appear in this series. Newspaper clippings document Wilgus professional achievements, university news, and Latin American events. Wilgus corresponded with several organizations including the following: Geographic and Historical Society of the Americas, Pan American Union, National Council for Social Studies, American Historical Society of the Americas, The American Peace Society, The Inter-American Bibliographic Library Association and others. Also contained in this series is correspondence with Latin American scholars from around the world, including friends and former students.

"Family" correspondence includes letters from Wilgus to his parents from 1918-39. Family correspondence also includes letters from his mother from the years 1916-26, from his second wife, Karna Wilgus, 1956-67, and letters from other family members dated 1956-74. "Professional" correspondence contains photographs, newspaper clippings, programs from Latin American conferences and university events, correspondence with Latin Americanists and with diplomats.

Correspondence relates to the publication of writings, university matters such as student recommendations and books selected for courses, and Latin American conferences and organizations.

SERIES II: TOPICAL FILES, includes correspondence, programs, newsletters and other materials related to the various educational, historical and inter-American organizations. Conference topics range from American education in the Cold War to Caribbean studies. Files concern organization activities as well as more general subjects. A file dealing with the Inter-American Center of Florida, for example, contains a report by Wilgus (1946) which covers the status of Inter-American relations throughout the state of Florida and provides "Opinions of Leading Individuals in Florida."

Several files contain manuscripts including Wilgus' writings, conference lectures and papers, and the papers of James Robertson, editor of the Hispanic American Historical Review (HAHR). Robertson's papers include correspondence, records relating to HAHR and to his collection of papers at the Library of Congress. The "American Delusion," published in 1917 in Brazil, also appears in the papers. The work, described as "a denunciation of the United States and its relations with Latin America," was "confiscated upon its publication in Brazil."

Several files deal with the dedication of statues at various Latin American centers. Correspondence, programs and photographs document the events, often attended by congressmen and diplomats.

Professional writings is another topic documented in these files. Contracts and correspondence with several publishing companies appears in this series, as well as correspondence involving articles written and edited for a number of encyclopedias.

Correspondence, memos, programs and other materials deal with George Washington University and the University of Florida. Other files concern conferences Wilgus attended and lectures he gave at other universities including the University of Miami's Hispanic American Institute in 1947 (See: Box 84, Folder 784).

TOPICAL FILES includes copies of bibliographical works as well as correspondence regarding bibliographical organizations. One file contains correspondence and a preliminary draft outlining a proposed WPA bibliography that would encompass a "comprehensive list of publications, in several languages, covering the American continents..." (85-802)

A few files contain materials that involve Wilgus' position as consultant to the United States Office of Education and the United States State Department. Files relating to the State Department contain correspondence, newspaper clippings, and pamphlets revealing efforts to establish more amicable relations with Latin America, and a desire to "strengthen the relations between the State Department policy planning staff and institutes for the study of foreign relations in various universities of the country" (See Box 83, Folder 779). Wilgus service on the "General Advisory Committee to the United States Office of Education" during 1941 is documented in correspondence and reports of meetings. Files dealing with Wilgus' duties as consultant for the Bureau of Research of the Office of Education in the 1960's contains correspondence, pamphlets, a newsletter and other materials. Other files in the series concern projects, personal matters and miscellaneous topics involving Latin America Interama "WORLDCOM," an "electronic library" and a production center for films, radio and television programs with a satellite station link to other countries, is discussed as a potential center for international conferences. The "Alcoa Report," written by Wilgus for the Alcoa Steamship Company, describes the vocational and technical educational facilities of Trinidad and Jamaica.

SERIES III: WRITINGS contains diaries dated 1912-47 and several works including Wilgus' textbook, the Development of Hispanic America, and Directed History Problems and Map Projects, a collection of worksheets dealing with European history. Another collection of papers, the Historical Dictionaries are the product of an Inter-American Bibliographical and Library Association project. Files, labeled by country and arranged alphabetically, include correspondence, contracts, and an "Editors Foreword" section composed by Wilgus. A brief synopsis of each country's history and biographical information about the contributing scholar is included. A copy of Wilgus' Latin America: A Guide to Illustrations provides explanations of photos in books and periodicals. The work, prepared under the auspices of the Inter-American Bibliographical and Library Association, covers various periods, nations, and aspects of Latin American studies.

Numerous 19th century travel biographies, also arranged alphabetically, describe observations and experiences of travelers in Latin America during the 1800's. The American Natives, a collection of readings on Latin America, and several papers discussed at the center for Inter-American relations in 1969 are also in this series. A 1970 bibliography lists collections of personal papers dealing with Latin America. Other files contain an unfinished manuscript, part of a series of "popular" books on various world regions. Wilgus' thesis, one of his father's manuscripts and an "Outline of History in the Elementary Schools" is also included. Additional files contain articles and speeches dated 1963-66.

SERIES IV: PHOTOGRAPHS AND OTHER MATERIALS contains photographs of Wilgus and family members as well as events held by the Pan American Union, Inter-American Bibliographic and Library Association, and the Pan American Institute of Geography and History. Photographs dated 1962 document Inter-American Academy events, and others dated 1963 cover the "swearing in ceremony" for new members of the Board of Foreign Scholarship. Other materials consist of awards, diplomas, certificates and post cards.
