Note

The Graduate School (sometimes called the School of Graduate Studies) has over 50 doctoral programs on three major campuses (Coral Gables, the Miller School of Medicine, and the Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Sciences). The diversity of academic programs is matched by the diversity of the student body both culturally and geographically. The Graduate School is the central advocate for campus-wide graduate programs while providing strategic leadership for growth and quality. It is also a resource for graduate students, providing guidance for program offerings, admissions guidelines, dissertation editing and electronic submission, and career preparation.
