Administrative history / Biographical sketch

Note

INTAR Theatre is one of the oldest Hispanic theater companies in the United States. International Arts Relation, Inc. (INTAR) was founded in New York in 1966 as Asociación de Arte Latinoamericano (ADAL) by a group of Cuban and Puerto Rican writers and artists. Cuban-born Max Ferrá served as INTAR's artistic director since its founding until 2004, when Cuban-American playwright Eduardo Machado assumed artistic leadership of the organization.

In its early years, INTAR focused on producing in Spanish the works of significant European and American playwrights. In the 1970s, the organization began producing works in English by Iberoamerican and Latino writers. The theater company has built on this strength and emphasizes new works that reflect the cultural heritage and concerns of the Hispanic community in the United States. Works have included drama, musicals, children's theater, collaborative visual arts and theater creations, and traveling productions.

INTAR has historically focused on four program areas. The theater program has resulted in over 125 theater productions by more than 175 playwrights and composers. The developmental theater program has hosted various writing labs and workshops designed to support the creation of new theater works by Hispanic artists. Almost every Latino playwright working today has participated in one of INTAR's workshops. Cuban-born, avant-garde playwright María Irene Fornés directed the Hispanic Playwrights-in-Residence Lab from 1981 to 1991. Graciela Daniele ran a Music Theater Lab from 1985 to 1989, and in 1991, INTAR hosted an Actors Lab.

The New Woks Lab was founded in 1994 under the direction of Michael Garces and is designed to support the creative development of emerging directors, writers, actors and other artists from the Latino theater community. Most recently, INTAR launched the Actor's Collective as part of its developmental theater program.

Inverna Lockpez founded INTAR's Latin American Gallery in 1979, serving as curator through the 1990s. The Gallery was established as an alternative space to provide exposure for emerging and established Latino and Latin American artists, producing bilingual catalogs and posters for its exhibitions. INTAR also operated an educational program for public school students, including field days bringing students and teachers to INTAR for matinee performances and guided tours; an internship program; and in-school touring productions.

Today, INTAR focuses on its theater and developmental theater programs with a mission to:

- * Nurture the professional development of Latino theater artists.
- * Produce bold, innovative, artistically significant plays that reflect diverse perspectives.
- * Make accessible the diversity inherent in America's cultural heritage.

Series descriptions

Series id140467: Scripts

Date: 1958-2003 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Series 1 includes scripts by Iberoamerican and Hispanic playwrights that were collected by INTAR. While several of these scripts were produced by INTAR through its various theater activities, many of them were kept on file for possible production, readings, or other activities. The literary manager at INTAR maintained this collection of scripts in alphabetical order by the author's last name, an organizational scheme that is preserved here. Included in this series is the index card file that the literary manager created and used to manage these scripts. The scripts files often include original typescripts as well as photocopies and various drafts of works. While many of the scripts in this series are original works, others are translations or adaptations carried out by Latino writers. Translations and adaptations are filed under the name of the author of the original work, noting the name of the translator or adapter.
